

Normandy - Vaumicel Manor

The Battle of Vaumicel Manor occurred on June 6, 1944, as part of the D-Day landings during Operation Overlord in Normandy. It was a localized but intense engagement involving the U.S. 502nd Parachute Infantry Regiment of the 101st Airborne Division.

The battle focused on the capture of Vaumicel Manor, a key German stronghold near the beachheads. The heavily fortified manor served as a command post and artillery position, threatening Allied movements inland. The paratroopers, despite being scattered during their drop, regrouped and launched a coordinated assault on the manor.

After fierce fighting, including close-quarters combat, the U.S. forces captured the manor, neutralizing its defenders and securing a critical position. This success contributed to the broader efforts to consolidate the Allied beachheads and disrupt German defenses in the region.

The battle exemplified the resourcefulness and determination of airborne troops in achieving their objectives under challenging conditions.

Campaign:

Normandy Invasion

Codename:

Operation Overlord

Summary:

The Axis forces are scattered across the battlefield, while the Allies are lined up against their border ready for attack. The challenge for both sides is to make their way across the open battlefield. Using hedgerows and forest hexes is the best way to move your forces towards the medal objectives in each of the towns. There are two medals each for Axis and Allies. They seem to be within reach, but getting to it, and holding it are two different things. You will have to make sure you have dealt a crippling blow to any nearby enemy infantry before you seek to possess a town hex medal.

Objectives:

Six VP's, with two Objective Medals in the towns of Ferme de l'Ormel and St. Laurent for the Axis, and one Objective Medal for the Axis at the town of Vacqueville and at Wn.69.

Battlefield:

Countryside scattered with forests and hedgerows.

Troops:

Allies - 9 Infantry; 2 Armor

Axis - 8 Infantry, 1 Armor, 1 Artillery

Allied Strategy:

1. Big picture strategy is that your right flank is your strong one, and your left flank, although you have a lot of firepower, is up against a well-entrenched artillery which will cut you to ribbons unless you deal with it. If you get the cards, you can make a good push up the right flank. But you will have to target each unit along the way and take them out one hex at a time.

2. Be careful of the Axis artillery on your left flank. They can reach nearly to the back row of hexes. And any attack attempted upon the two infantry hexes at A5 and d4 will be supported by a two-dice response attack from the artillery.

Axis Strategy:

1. You are primarily in a defensive position in this scenarios as the Allies advance against you, so remain in defensive positions. But should the cards present an attack opportunity, then take it.
2. However, you have some Combat Engineers and Special Forces in the back. Move them forward, under protection, but get them into a spot to assault some of the forward positions of the enemy. The special abilities of the Combat Engineers can attack while ignoring terrain battle restrictions.
